amusing results. In a city within three hundred miles of Detroit, Mich., the Mail is one of the liveliest papers, and it hates to lose a good item. The daughter of one of that city's wealthiest citizens went out for a sleigh-ride with a young man whom her father had forbidden the house. They returned not. The excited parent found, on inquiring at the Union depot that a similar pair had purchased tickets for Boston. Like Lord Ullen the old man "fast behind them rode" on the next train, but he reached Boston only in time to find himself the father in law of that forbidden young man. He returned home. resolved to have the account thereof suppressed in the city papers. The Mail promised to keep out the name, and in the body of the article said that for "obvious reasons the names are not given." The account ends with: "The young people were married in Boston, and their marriage notice is published in this paper." Of course everybody age. turns to the column head, "Marriages," and reads: "At Bos'on, by the Rev. Mr. etc., etc., etc., etc. No cards," full Honor Daniel L. Russell, left here on names being given. This is one of the Friday night last for the seat of governbost instances of suppression on record.

Oilfor Watches

When a main spring is cleaned, most inexperienced workmen, will take hold of one end and pull the spring about half its length, straight out, to save time-a practice which will break springs when nothing else will, and springs treated thus, generally break after the watch has been delivered to the customer only a few days. Breaking into many pieces is owing to the acid in the oil which is used. Thus supposing the main spring a fine one, and to have been evenly tempered and properly cleaned-if now, old oil is used, or that of an inferior quality if fresh, the acid it contains will eat into the spring, and finally destroy its texture : the coil nearest the centre breaks | M. E. Church, complains of the confirst, and as it recoil it breaks every duct of some of the young men who coil there is in the barrel, and sometimes each coil is broken twice, the fact being that this spring has become so impregnated with acid, that it has no life left. To make the oil pure, take a good sized bullet, or other piece of lead, which has a thick coating of lead rust, cut it up fine, put into the oil, and have it stand for two weeks. This causes the acid to settle, and it the late Capt. Isaac B. Grainger. then resembles milk at the bottom, on being poured off the top, the oil is in a pure state. THE WILMINGTON POST.

W. P. CANADAY, Ed'r & Prop'r. WILMINGTON, N. C., SUNDAY MORNING, MARCH 16, 1879.

We publish the act of the General Assembly to compromise and consolidate the state debt. We have been waiting ever since it became a law to get it in full with amendments, and are at last able to lay it before our readers, as the most important act of the session.

Certain Democrats are already taking veto the Appropriation bills when saddled with legislation foreign to the objects of the bill, he is defeating the will of the country, as expressed in Congress, and is responsible solely for the consequences. This is no more than was claimed at last of the late Congress, when the House endeavored to coerce the Senate. It will be both Houses of Congress endeavoring to coerce the President. The President does not drive Congress; for Congress to attempt to force the President is in fact usurpation and revolution. The power of the President is purely and not include in the Appropriation bills, an act to increase the army to half a million of men, it would be the identical attempt that the Democratic Congress intends to make on the President. Should any President do such a thing it would be justifiable ground for his removal from office.

THE REPEAL OF THE FEDERAL ELECTION LAWS.

It does not require much sagacity to city, county, town, township, precinct and parish of the southern states, the election machinery is absolutely controlled by one political party-the Democratic, from the Potomac to for Representatives in Congress, officers ity to scrutinize, count and canvass the ballots; to forward to other officers the returns of the elections; and generally, to do what the state election officers and judges can do. Their power is however, limited in this, that they termed it, and in no small degree Federal returns of election.

and the appropriations were not made. The President consequently, called Congress in extra session.

probably pass an act to repeal the as probably, acting under his Constitutional power, veto the repeal. Congress will then pass the appropriasuch a fearful emergency cannot be slavery that was thus instituted was a conjectured. The Baltimore Gazette far more degrading, merciless and merand hundreds of Democratic papers hold such language as the following.

A threat comes from Republican sources that Mr. Hayes will try his veto power on the Democratic measures of the next Congress. If the Governor Hampton, enacted a code important measures are put through as riders to Appropriation bills, Mr. Hayes can veto to his heart's content. The army can go without pap and the legislative and executive branches can run on short rations without embarrassing the Democracy.

Thus the annihilation of the government is more flippantly talked of than it was in 1860. What could more suddenly colapse a government than the stopping of supplies? How can government proceed without money to carry on its operations? Yet this is what the Democratic party seem resolved on doing.

An Appropriation bill is an act directing the expenditure of money for a certain purpose. A repeal of the election laws has no more to do with an appropriation bill, than the cooking of a potato has to do with the erection of a lightning rod. Once a bloody and vindictive Commons in England threatened to tack a bill of attainder to an appropriation bill. But we would fain hope that such unscrupulous methods would never have been attempted, or even suggested in this country.

Should it eventuate as above outlined-if the Democratic party is resolved to repeal the election laws or that now such legislation is wiped off stop supplies—if the President is the statute backs and that there are stop snpplies-if the President is the statute-books, and that there are resolute in resisting their treason and wickedness, the conflict will raise such a storm that in the north-in Indianca. in New York, in Connecticut, everywhere—the Democratic party will be as completely submerged as in 1864.

Alston said :- "I am unarmed; you would not kill a defenceless man." Cox told went to the Capitol, where the Treasurer persuaded him to stay. The Governor came in, and asked Alston to there while he would send for Cox.

Alston says:-"I know him well, gentlemen, and I ought to take a shot gun and kill him, else he will kill me. As Alston went into the Treasurer's office Cox came down a side corridor. He looked in the Governor's office as he passed, and seeing a man who resembled Alston sitting there drew his the Thirteenth Amendment might be tering the Treasurer's office, and fol- of issue. having first shut the door. Alston then says :- "Well, we'll have it now; are you armed?" Alston waited for an answer, but Cox, without replying, drew his pistol, uttering a cry of rage. Alston whipped out his pistol at the same moment. Captain Nelms jumped between them and caught at both the men. The two pistols flashed simultaneously and the close room was filled with smoke. There were several successive flashes, interference being impossible. Alston's first ball struck Cox in the mouth and apparently blinded him, as he wasted several shots. Alston stood perfectly cool. His second shot tore through Cox's uplifted hand, and his third was buried in Cox's throat. By this time Cox had staggered up to Alston, and putting his pistol almost to his head fired. Alston fell forward instantly, the ball having entered his temple. Cox threw up his hands and said :- "We are both killed." The men were both carried out and attention given to them. Alston lingered unconscious until half-past six this evening, his condition exciting the intensest public interest. Immense crowds hung about the doors begging for news as to his condition as long as he lived, and the whole city is borne down with sorrow. He failed to recognize his wife or friends and died without any appearance of pain. Cox is in a critical condition and the public indignation is very high against

Because she has no law to protect sheep and tax dogs. Because her school law is such that good, honest labor will not come to her. Because her vagrant law is not carried into force, and thereby let loafers, white and black. idle their time away around the cities and towns, eating bread made not by their own exertions. Because her lawmakers will not let her land owners have less fences and more pastures, which would enable them to cultivate the "good spots" without having to fence in two hundred acres of land to get twenty-five. But the law-makers desire to "keep in" with certain classes, and will not work for the interest of the state, when they think it will damage their chances for a re-election. Because there are more first-class barrooms than first-class schools; where a great many men spend from thirty cents to one dollar per day, when their wives are in need of a dress, and their children roaming around when they should be attending school .- A suffis cient tax ought to be imposed on barrooms to beep up the public schools of the state.—Because the old Aristocratic feeling which look down on the honest toilers has not entirely died out. The Administration and Congress. Several particularized statements have recently been made regarding the attitude the Administration may assume in the threatened conflict between Congress and the Executive. but it is due to President Hayes to explain that, restrained by a proper branch of the Government, he has tion and advice to a Democratic legiscarefully avoided authorizing any publication relative to this subject which attempt to intimidats Congress in any way. In this respect he is evidently at a disadvantage, for the irresponindividual Congressmen regarding the about the State Capitol and Capital, subject are made public, either in public discussions or so called private conversations, without the least restraint. In these discussions or conversations his course is criticised and his motives are subjected to unfriendly analysis. At the same time he is wildly threatened with dire punishment it he "dares" to "talk back." and his officials in plundering the tax-Tais rather uncomfortable attitude of payers, and will continue to take the being compelled to submit to assault last cent the law will allow them to and being told that to resent it will the end of their terms. He does not believe that the law as it now pears to him to be advisable now, and he will not, as at present inclined, in terpose any objection to its repeal.

As regards the third, and most vital point of this programme, which provides for a repeal of the supervisors' law, he is firm in his determination to excercise every power at his command to retain the law upon the statute books in full force and effect. He insist that the law, as it now stands, is plainly and simply a law for the prevention of fraud in our national elections, and further, that if any com-plaint can rest against it, it must arise from some fault in its execution. The spirit of the law, he believes, is nonabsurd and slauderous the wholesale charge of the opposition that the officials appointed under this law have habitually abused the power vested in them by using it for partisan purposes. He sees in the result of last fall's elections an obvious necessity for its existence and in the proceedings in the various United States courts north and south since then a vindication of its usefulness. Further, he argues that it is of general and non-sectional application, more effective, perhaps, in the densely populated north than in the south; but at the same time as effective as human agencies can be made to be in the prevention and punishment of fraud. For these and other equally pertinent reasons he will, as above stated, exert every legitimate method and resource at his command to prevent its repeal. Fire Worshipers Overthrown.

A curious story in current in the worship once predominant there by China. Whether historically true or "Tax Payer" again appears in the not, the tale is at least thoroughly country which produced it. It was the custom of the Guebres to insist that whenever any attempt was made to inthe new comer's image should be brought into direct contant with their sacred fire, and that the votaries of the conquered deity should at once quit the field. For many years the fire had the best of it, and the unfortunate gods who faced it either crumbled to ashes or melted away in a stream, according to the material of which they were composed. At length a colony of Chinese Buddhists came in from the east, and the usual test was applied to their sacred image. But the high priest of Buddha, thinking that the latter's divine power might be none the worse for a little secular aid, had previously filled the image with water, and stopped with wax the tiny holes which perforated its sides. Accordingly, the mos ment the wax melted, the hitherto invincible fire began to hiss and spatter in a very unpromising way, and finally went out a together; whereupon its crest-fallen worshipers instantly abandoned the field to their opponents.

Mr. Southall tells us of rather an unusual case that happened over in Franklin last week. Mr. Wm. Person had as his tenants some women, who were the daughters of the late Jerry Williams. Their time having expired he notified them to leave, which they declined doing. He attempted to eject them when a melee ensued, and Mr. P. was severely scalded with boiling red pepper tea prepared for the purpose, and shot at with a pistol, the ball grazing his abdomen. His wounds are said to be seyere.— Warrenton Gazette.

The Army and Navy Journal, New York, is prompt to recognize the importance of its constituency of the bill to reorganize the Army, just reported by the Joint Committee. The bill is a document of 724 sections or 294 octavo pages, and to make room for it, the Journal issues a double number, thirty two pages in all. Whether the bill pass or not, it is of great interest to army men and their friends as a codification of existing army laws, in their effect on the service. With the bill the Journal gives a letter from General Sherman. giving his opinion of the proposed reorganization, also a review of the bill with comments on the different sections, etc., etc.

WILMINGTON, N. C.,

SUNDAY MORNING, MARCH 16, 1879.

Greeley's Trouble With His Shirts One Winter Mrs. Greeley went to the West Indies for her health and the following spring she sent for her husband to come after her and bring her home to New York. Now, if there was Register, one thing the old man hated it was the sea. The very smell of salt water made him sick. But, nevertheless, he obeyed his wife's call, as he was accustomed to bis wife's call, as he was accustomed to from the press. They would rather obey her every whim. In due time tell a lie than have their heads chopthey got back to Gotham and that ped off. morning Mr. Sinclair received word that Greeley was not feeling well owing to his voyage, and had decided to stay at home for the day. In the evening Sinclair was going to Washington on What is Washington's loss is our business, and so, valise in hand, he eternal gain. called at Mr. Greeley's house an hour or two before the train was to start, He found the old man in bed, and actually very ill, having suffered terribly all the way out and all the way back from sea-sickness. He was alone, the other members of the family being ill or away from home, and so Sinclair determined to pass the night with him, giving up for that time his trip to the "Sinclair," he said, in that querulous whine of his, "I'm as naked as the day I was born. My trunks haven't arrived you are dying, Gideon? And the yet, and I haven't got a nightgown." "But why not wear this?" pointing to the garment he had taken off before getting into bed.

"Oh, I expect to get out to morrow, and I want that to wear them. How the blazes would it look after I'd slept

Well, in due time his baggage arrived and Sinclair made a bolt for the article needed. After some rummaging he found it, and assisted the old man to put it on. It was soon fastened at the neck, and the nurse took up one of the wrists and tried to button it. There, however, he stuck fast. The ends wouldn't meet by fully two inches. He tugged and twisted to his utmost, but it was no go. Still, as the patient said nothing, he supposed it ought to fasten, and redoubled his efforts for that purpose. For about twenty minutes he labored without success. Then he said, "This is a failure. It won't fasten." "No," said Greeley, with exasperating calmness, "I knew it wouldn't. The fact is, I never could button the infernal thing myself. But you seemed to enjoy it, and so I didn't disturb you."

He lay back on the pillows for a few moments, as if thinking deeply, and then, sitting bolt upright, he brought his fist down upon the quilt and exclaimed, savagely.

"It ever Mormonism works as far East as this, I'll have one wife to take care of my shirts.'

The Afghans.

Their strong, heavy features and dark skins give them a fierce expression of countenance; their black eyes-"their lids tinged with antimony to add force. beauty, and dazzling brilliancy to them"-are full of fire, so that their swift, bold, and flaming glance is very impressive. They wear their hair shaved from the forehead to the top of the head, the rest falling in thick black masses to the shoulders. The dress of the people is of cotton, or of cloth called barek, made of camel's hair, and is worn in two long and very full robes, the material used by the wealthy classes being of silk or cashmere; blue or white father: turbans and slippers complete the cos-thread embroidery. This ornamentation is done by the women in the harems, who are very skillful with the Comte de Gobineau in his "Romances of the East," thus describes a young Afghan chief, whose name was Moshen, meaning beautiful: "His complexion was richly tawny, like the skin of fruit ripened by the sun. His black locks curled in a wealth of ringlets round the compact folds of his blue turban striped with red; a sweeping and rather long silken mustache caressed the delicate outline of his upper lip, which was cleanly cut, mobile, proud, and breathing of passion. His eyes, tender and deep, flashed readily. He was tall, strong, slender, broad-shouldered, and straight-flanked. No one would ever dream of asking his race; it was eyident that the purest Afghan blood flowed in his veins."

The beauty of the young Afghans is frequently spoken of by Eastern writers, but it would seem from the very nature of things as though this glowing description must be overdrawn; just as the handsome, pensive young Uncas of our well-beloved Indian romancer, James Fenimore Cooper, can hardly be recognized in the modern Modoc. Still, abundant testimony claims a dark and hardy beauty for the Afghan in his prime. - Harper's Magazine.

Trumpet Blasts.

Lost cause has been found again The Contederate Democracy have ot the Government by the throat now, sure enough.

In 1880 the northern Democracy wil apologize to Jeff Davis for ever having alled him a rebel.

Senator Thurman should now have a bar or two printed in his red bandana. It would cheer the south.

It is a pity J. Wilkes Booth is not living, so the Democrats in Congress could place him on the pension rolls along with Jeff Davis.

For the first time in eighteen years the Democrats have a majority in the Senate. For the second time in ighteen years the country is in danger.

Who, of the Republican leaders in the new House, will take the place that old Thad Stevens would have fills ed? The man who does will receive such a backing from the loyal people of the north as has not been given to any Congressmen for many years.

Zach Chandler's voice has been heard in the Senate. He has made a solid, old-fashioned Republican speech and the Confederate brigadiers are not happy. Zach is an improvement on The Aighans.

> The current of events and discussion clearly points to the true Democratic ticket for 1880-Tilden and Jeff Davis. Tilden to represent the incorruptible virtue and reform of the party, and Davis to represent its fervid and undying patriotism; the union of the two to represent the union of the north and the south under Democratic auspices. Let the Democratic watchword be Tilden, Jeff Davis, and Democracy!

THE GENUINE

DR. C. McLANE'S Celebrated American

WORM SPECIFIC

VERMIFUGE.

SYMPTOMS OF WORMS.

THE countenance is pale and lead-1 en-colored, with occasional flushes, or a circumscribed spot on one or both cheeks; the eyes become dull; the pupils dilate; an azure semicircle runs along the lower eye-lid; the nose is irritated, swells, and sometimes bleeds; a swelling of the upper lip; occasional headache, with humming or throbbing of the ears; an unusual secretion of saliva; slimy or furred tongue; breath very foul, particularly in the morning; appetite variable, sometimes voracious, with a gnawing sensation of the stomach, at others, entirely gone; fleeting pains in the stomach; occasional nausea and vomiting; violent pains throughout the abdomen; bowels irregular, at times costive; stools slimy, not unfrequent-ly tinged with blood; belly swollen and hard; urine turbid; respiration occasionally difficult, and accompanied by hiccough; cough sometimes dry and convulsive; uneasy and disturbed sleep, with grinding of the teeth; temper variable, but generally irritable, &c.

Whenever the above symptoms are found to exist, DR. C. McLANE'S VERMIFUGE will certainly effect a cure. IT DOES NOT CONTAIN MERCURY in any form; it is an innocent preparation, not capable of doing the slightest injury to the most tender infant. The genuine Dr. McLane's Ver-MIFUGE bears the signatures of C. McLane and Fleming Bros. on the -:0:-

DR. C. McLANE'S LIVER PILLS

are not recommended as a remedy "for all the ills that flesh is heir to," but in affections of the liver, and in all Bilious Complaints, Dyspepsia and Sick Head-ache, or diseases of that character, they stand without a rival.

AGUE AND FEVER.

No better cathartic can be used preparatory to, or after taking Quinine. As a simple purgative they are un-

BEWARE OF IMITATIONS. The genuine are never sugar coated. Each box has a red wax seal on the id, with the impression Dr. McLane's LIVER PILLS.

Each wrapper bears the signatures of C. McLane and Fleming Bros. Insist upon having the genuine Dr. C. McLane's Liver Pills, prepared by Fleming Bros., of Pittsburgh, Pa., the market being full of imitations of the name McLane, spelled differently but same pronunciation.
